

Sept. 1973

R. V. Coughenour was almost instantly killed and his wife received injuries, from which she died on Sunday morning, when their car was struck by a gasoline train on the Chicago Great Western railway at the northeast corner of Melbourne Friday morning at 9:25 a.m.