Escaped From Training School At Eldora

Two boys, who escaped from the training school at Eldora, when a visitor to the school allowed one of them to have the keys to his auto, figured in an auto accident Tuesday evening near the farm of Floyd Atwood, south of Collins. As the result of the car leaving the road, one boy is dead and another lies seriously injured at the Nevada sanitarium.

James Elliott, aged 17, driver of the car, suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries from which he died at 8:20 p.m. He got use of the visitor's car and got Jack Dixon, of Sioux City, to go along with him. Atwood said they passed another car going at the rate of 70 miles an hour and could not right themselves as they swung back into the road, with the result the car was wrecked and the boys hurt.
