

Iowa Centre.

April 26, 1890.—I have just received communication of the death on the 5th, inst. of Dr. J. S. Gillett, of Rich Hill, Mo. His body, accompanied by his wife, son and sister-in-law, was taken to his old home at Bath, N. Y. for enternent. Dr. Gillett was well known in this section of the country, having an extensive practice, and was considered one of the best of physicians. The Dr. with his family moved to California in Jan. 1876, from there to Carthage, Mo., and afterward to Rich Hill where he practiced medicine until his last sickness.
