

The Rhodes Rocket

Rhodes, Iowa 50234

January 1, 2002

Edith Hauser, 89 formerly of 710 Arlington Drive, died peacefully at 3:15 a.m. Tuesday Dec. 18, at the Grandview Heights Care Center.

Services was held at 10:30 a.m. Friday at the Lakeview Chapel of the Riverside Cemetery with Pastor Bobby Shomo officiating. She was laid to rest beside her husband in the Riverside Cemetery. There was no visitation. The Estel-Perrin-Avey Funeral Home has been entrusted by the Hauser family with her final arrangements.

Born Edith Marie Sink on Aug. 27, 1912, in Rhodes, she was the daughter of Robert Jackson and Helena C. (Haak) Sink. She received her education in the State Center and Rhodes areas and graduated from the Rhodes High School.

On Jan. 24, 1937, she was united in marriage to W. Glenn Hauser. They farmed on route 63, near Marshalltown until his death on Oct. 7, 1969.

Mrs. Hauser was fondly remembered as a loving wife and mother who enjoyed cooking and sewing. She loved to walk, sometimes many miles a day. She will be greatly missed by her family and friends.

Left to mourn her loss are her daughter, Darlene (Mrs. Jim) Purvis of Marshalltown, three grandchildren, six great-grandchildren, seven great-great grandchildren, one sister Roberta Granger of Council Bluffs, and several nieces and nephews.

Gone on before here were her husband, brothers Walter and Maurice, and sister Clara Wheat, her parents and one grandson.

Our deepest sympathy to her family, friends, and all her relatives.
