

Curtis L. Marsh, Jr.

Nov. 18, 1927, to April 13, 1992

Curtis L. Marsh, Jr., 64, of Greensboro, N.C., died of heart failure at his home.

He was born to Curtis L. Marsh, Sr., and Alice Heintz Marsh near Collins. After graduating from Collins High School, he served in the U.S. Navy. He graduated from the University of Iowa College of Electrical Engineering and worked as an Engineer for the Western Electric Company until his retirement.

Survivors include three sons, Curtis and Rick, both of Greensboro, N.C., and Michael of Wilmington, N.C.; two grandchildren; his mother, Alice Marsh of Collins; three brothers, James of Jewell; Fred of Hesperia, Calif., and Lewis of Collins; and four sisters, Jean Weir of Colo, Kathy Maxwell of What Cheer, Judy Dunshee of Indianapolis, Ind., and Marilyn Barger of Cave Creek, Ariz.

He was preceded in death by his father.

A memorial service was held at sunset on April 17 and his ashes were scattered at sea off the coast of Wilmington, N.C.

Marsh, Curtis L. Jr.

d. April 13, 1992