Kathryn Imogene Vogt

Aug. 10, 1924, to March 3, 2002

Kathryn Imogene Vogt, 77, of rural Cambridge, died Sunday, March 3, at Methodist Hospital in Rochester, Minn., from complication of Non-Hodgkinson Lymphoma.

She was born Aug. 10, 1924, to Wilbur and Edith (Yokum) Banks. She married Claude A. Vogt on Sept. 5, 1943, at Pleasant Grove Church near Ames. She graduated from Cambridge High School and had worked at R.H. Donnelley in Nevada and also for Bourns in Ames before her retirement. She was a lifetime member of the Cambridge American Legion Auxiliary and Pemphadis Foundation. She enjoyed reading and spending time with her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Survivors include her son, David A. Vogt of Mountain Grove, Mo.; four grandchildren; four great-granddaughters; a brother, Charles Banks of Nevada and a sister, Laura Vogt of Ankeny.

She was preceded in death by her parents and her husband, Claude, on Aug. 24, 1997.

Funeral services were held today, Thursday, March 7, at 2 p.m. at Bacon Funeral Home in Nevada with Dr. John Hartog III officiating. Burial was in the Evergreen Memorial Cemetery, north of Nevada. Memorials may be made to the American Diabetes Foundation.
